1. Correct: D - Keep the detector unobstructed and report the chirping promptly

Repeated chirping may indicate that fire-safety equipment needs attention. The aide preserves detector function and reports it rather than removing a battery, covering it, or ignoring it.

2. Correct: D - Respect the resident's choice and follow the facility process for declining the visit

A resident may accept or refuse visitors. The aide honors the decision and uses the facility process rather than allowing others to override it.

3. Correct: B - Ask permission and secure the sleeves comfortably above the wrists

Moving loose sleeves away from food supports cleanliness and comfort while preserving the resident's clothing. Cutting, restraining, or ignoring the fabric is inappropriate.

4. Correct: B - Listen, offer to help the resident practice, and respect the final choice

Listening and optional practice support confidence without pressure or unrealistic promises. The resident remains in control of participation.

5. Correct: A - Report the problem and poor intake to nursing and dietary staff

A broken dental appliance can interfere with eating. Objective reporting allows the appropriate team members to assess and arrange safe nutrition support.

6. Correct: D - Remove it from use and obtain an item in an intact package

An open seal means sterility cannot be assumed. The aide replaces the item instead of attempting to restore or reuse it.

7. Correct: D - Set up the trained items and let the resident perform the skill

Setting up the trained adaptation lets the resident use an existing one-handed skill. Taking over or improvising equipment would reduce independence or safety.

8. Correct: B - Straighten the waistband and ask whether it feels comfortable

Correcting the twisted fabric addresses pressure and discomfort while preserving the resident's clothing. Cutting, tightening, or delaying is unnecessary.

9. Correct: B - Place the working amplifier within reach and speak at a normal pace

Accessible communication equipment supports the resident's voice. Shouting, excessive volume changes, or removing the device creates barriers.

10. Correct: D - Seated with back supported, feet flat, and legs uncrossed

A supported seated posture with flat feet and uncrossed legs reduces avoidable blood-pressure measurement error. Dangling, crossing, or unsupported positioning can affect the reading.

11. Correct: B - Support the resident's clothing choice if it is safe and consistent with current care directions

Residents retain choice about personal clothing. Staff convenience or uniform appearance does not replace an individual's safe preference.

12. Correct: D - Help position the mask comfortably and keep the call light accessible

A familiar sleep aid may be supported when used safely. Comfort and continued access to assistance remain priorities.

13. Correct: C - Acknowledge the resident's feelings, respect the choice, and report continued withdrawal

The aide validates the body-image concern without forcing contact or dismissing feelings. Ongoing withdrawal should be shared with the nurse.

14. Correct: B - Close it according to procedure and obtain a replacement hamper

Linen should not be compressed or allowed to overflow. Closing and replacing the full hamper limits exposure and supports safe handling.

15. Correct: A - Refuse and follow the facility process for reporting misuse of supplies

Facility supplies are not personal property. Refusal and proper reporting maintain honesty and accountability.

16. Correct: A - Use the resident's clean hair clip and check that it is comfortable

A clean personal clip can keep hair away from food while preserving the resident's preferred appearance. Cutting, tight fastening, or tucking hair into clothing is inappropriate.

17. Correct: B - Observe the finding and report it promptly to the nurse

New red urine is an abnormal observation requiring prompt reporting. The aide records facts without diluting the sample or diagnosing a cause.

18. Correct: A - Give the sealed package directly to the licensed nurse and report its receipt

Medication handling and administration belong to authorized staff. Direct handoff to the licensed nurse preserves security and team accountability.

19. Correct: A - Pour the directed amount into the resident's clean personal cup

A clean personal cup and directed amount support safe oral care and prevent contamination of the bottle. Unused product is not returned.

20. Correct: D - Gelatin

Gelatin becomes liquid at room temperature and is generally counted as fluid intake. Solid foods such as toast, eggs, and crackers are not recorded as fluids.

21. Correct: D - Set up the trained device and allow the resident time to use it

The rocker knife is an established adaptation for independent meal preparation. Proper setup and adequate time preserve the resident's skill.

22. Correct: A - Support the resident, stop participating in the ridicule, and report the behavior

Residents have a right to dignity and respectful treatment. Mocking a resident's accent is inappropriate even if others call it a joke.

23. Correct: B - Keep residents away from the unsafe section and report it promptly

A loose handrail can cause a fall. The aide protects residents and reports the defect instead of attempting an unauthorized repair or test.

24. Correct: B - "What would make you more comfortable?"

An open, neutral question invites the resident to describe a need in the resident's own words. Leading questions and roommate opinions can limit or replace the resident's response.

25. Correct: C - Clean the cup as directed and refill it with fresh water

Routine cleaning and fresh water support hygiene and hydration. Topping off old water or sharing cups can spread contamination.

26. Correct: D - Remove the belt from use and obtain safe equipment

A cracked buckle may fail during transfer. Improvised repair or continued use places the resident and staff at risk.

27. Correct: C - Stay calm, reduce stimulation when possible, explain current safety, and report the reaction

A calm, trauma-informed response promotes immediate safety without argument or forced disclosure. Reporting helps the team plan future support.

28. Correct: A - Offer another safe clothing choice and protect the resident's ownership of the shirt

The aide addresses discomfort while preserving choice and personal property. Clothing should not be altered without the resident's permission.

29. Correct: C - Notify the nurse promptly and follow directions for the collection

A missed void can invalidate a timed collection. The aide reports the gap rather than estimating, concealing, or adding liquid.

30. Correct: C - Relay the request to the nurse and help follow the approved contact process

Residents may request communication with a chosen provider. The aide facilitates the request without diagnosing or requiring family approval.

31. Correct: A - Relay the message to the nurse and await confirmed directions

The nurse aide communicates the laboratory message but does not independently cancel orders or discard supplies. Confirmed team directions prevent errors.

32. Correct: C - Keep the resident away from the hazard and report it for safe correction

An overloaded power strip creates fire and electrical risk. The aide protects the resident and obtains appropriate correction without altering active medical equipment.

33. Correct: D - Explain the available choices and honor the resident's selection

When both methods are permitted, the resident may choose. Staff convenience does not replace participation in daily care decisions.

34. Correct: C - Fill the small pitcher to the planned level and allow the resident to pour

Limiting the pitcher to the planned weight lets the resident use an existing pouring ability. Overfilling or taking over would reduce safe independence.

35. Correct: D - Stop, protect the skin, and report the finding to the nurse

A rolled stocking can create harmful pressure, and a red band is a skin change. The aide stops the problem and reports rather than adding pressure or massage.

36. Correct: B - Use the agreed cue and wait for the resident's response

The established tactile cue identifies the caregiver in an accessible, predictable way. Grabbing, shouting from behind, or using a roommate can startle or exclude the resident.

37. Correct: C - Open the curtains gradually and allow the resident's eyes to adjust

Gradual light exposure supports the resident's comfort after waking. Staff should follow the resident's request rather than force sudden light or let a roommate decide.

38. Correct: B - Check the label and date and follow the product directions

Disinfectants must be identifiable, current, and used as directed. Mixing products or using unlabeled or expired chemicals is unsafe.

39. Correct: C - Listen, follow the gradual safety plan, and report fear that limits participation

Fear after a fall can persist after physical recovery. Listening and using the current graded plan support confidence without arguing or guaranteeing outcomes.

40. Correct: A - Protect the resident and report the proposed seclusion immediately

Isolation as punishment violates resident rights and can cause harm. The aide safeguards the resident and reports the concern promptly.

41. Correct: C - Observe the appearance and report it promptly

New white oral patches are an abnormal observation requiring reporting. The aide does not scrape tissue, share medication, or diagnose the cause.

42. Correct: A - Smooth the socks so the fabric is dry and free of wrinkles

Dry, smooth socks reduce friction, pressure, and moisture against the skin. Tight rolls, damp fabric, and objects can cause injury.

43. Correct: D - Notify the nurse and coordinate safe supplies or timing with the team

Planned service interruptions require team coordination so hygiene can continue safely. The aide does not use unapproved water or cancel care silently.

44. Correct: A - Remove or block the hazard and report it for correction

A curled mat edge is a trip hazard. Immediate protection and reporting prevent falls while an appropriate repair or replacement is arranged.

45. Correct: C - Honor the request and coordinate the safe meal timing

A brief individual spiritual practice should be accommodated when the meal can be held safely. Staff do not judge or reschedule the resident's belief.

46. Correct: C - Position the mirror so the resident can inspect the style and request changes

The mirror lets the resident evaluate personal appearance and direct grooming. Staff or roommates should not replace the resident's preference.

47. Correct: A - Move the resident away and activate the emergency procedure

A gas odor may signal an explosive hazard. The aide moves the resident away, avoids ignition sources, and activates the emergency response.

48. Correct: D - Maintain professional boundaries and follow facility policy

Private online relationships can blur professional boundaries even after discharge. The aide should follow employer policy and avoid secret or alternate accounts.

49. Correct: D - Position the book and device as planned and allow time for use

Proper setup lets the resident continue an established independent reading skill. Speed does not justify taking over the activity.

50. Correct: C - Ask the resident to explain the expression in another way

Honest clarification prevents incorrect care and respects the resident as the source of meaning. Guessing or ignoring can misrepresent the request.

51. Correct: B - Hanging freely where a person near the floor can reach it

An accessible pull cord allows a person who has fallen or lowered to the floor to call for help. Tying, shortening, or wrapping it can make it unreachable.

52. Correct: C - Wipe and dry it as directed, then return it to the right shoe

Following the established cleaning method preserves the insert and its correct side placement. Bleach, side switching, or unnecessary disposal can make it unsafe or unusable.

53. Correct: D - Honor the privacy request and share it only as needed

A resident controls whether personal information is publicly celebrated. Age, date, and room posting are not substitutes for consent.

54. Correct: B - Keep the resident safe and report the problem promptly

Inability to urinate with increasing lower-abdominal discomfort requires prompt nursing assessment. The aide does not press the abdomen, insert a catheter, or delay reporting.

55. Correct: C - Acknowledge the frustration, note the resident's effort, and offer support without taking over

Specific, respectful support protects self-esteem and remaining ability. Comparison, dismissal, or automatic takeover can deepen discouragement.

56. Correct: D - Follow current directions and relay the concern to the care team

Drink consistency is a safety direction that the aide does not change independently. The concern should be communicated so the responsible team can review it.

57. Correct: A - Observe and report the change to the nurse

New ankle swelling is a change from baseline that requires reporting. The aide does not diagnose, massage, or restrict fluids independently.

58. Correct: B - Clean and dry it according to directions before storage

Proper cleaning and drying of a reusable straw limit residue and contamination. It should not be shared or stored with used meal items.

59. Correct: C - Near the resident's left side while keeping the face visible

Positioning near the better-hearing ear and remaining visible improves access to speech and facial cues. Speaking from behind creates a barrier.

60. Correct: B - Observe the area and report the new skin change

A new itchy rash after adhesive contact should be reported for assessment. The aide does not use another resident's medication, reapply the irritant, or scratch the skin.

61. Correct: B - Place the cup within reach for independent use

The adapted cup supports independent drinking. Proper placement and time allow the resident to use retained ability safely.

62. Correct: A - Provide the directed soft brush and allow careful cleaning around the braces

Braces do not eliminate the need for mouth care. A directed soft brush supports safe cleaning without sharp tools or shared supplies.

63. Correct: B - Follow the procedure and consult the Safety Data Sheet as directed

The Safety Data Sheet provides product-specific hazard and response information. Smelling, mixing, or bare-hand cleanup can increase exposure.

64. Correct: D - Protect residents and report the concern immediately through the proper chain

Signs of impairment create an immediate safety concern. The aide protects residents and escalates through supervision instead of concealing or publicizing the situation.

65. Correct: A - Stop using the cabinet supplies and report the pest promptly

A pest in a clean-supply cabinet may contaminate stored items. The aide stops distribution and reports the problem rather than brushing it aside or using an unapproved spray.

66. Correct: A - Listen without ridicule, discuss the resident's concern, and report continued device avoidance

The aide explores the resident's self-image concern respectfully without forcing the device or exposing the resident publicly. Ongoing avoidance should be reported.

67. Correct: C - Use the resident's labeled remover as directed and protect the surrounding skin

A permitted personal product should be used according to directions while avoiding unnecessary skin exposure. Sharp tools and shared products are unsafe.

68. Correct: A - Turn it off if safe, protect the resident, and report the hazard

A heater against a curtain creates an immediate fire hazard. The aide acts only if it is safe, protects the resident, and reports the problem rather than covering or extending the setup.

69. Correct: B - Keep the resident safe and notify the nurse immediately

Sudden flashes and a curtain-like vision change may be an eye emergency. The aide maintains safety and seeks immediate nursing response without testing or rubbing the eye.

70. Correct: A - Observe the change and report it promptly to the nurse

New yellowing of the skin and eye whites is an abnormal change that requires prompt reporting. The aide reports objective findings without masking, diagnosing, or delaying.
