1. Correct: D - Help wash the hands and gently clean beneath the nails with an approved nail brush

Cleaning the hands before eating removes debris and reduces microorganism spread. A gentle approved brush avoids injury from sharp improvised objects.

2. Correct: D - Stay with the resident and summon the nurse or emergency help immediately

A sudden extremely severe headache with vomiting is an urgent change. The aide stays with the resident and activates immediate professional evaluation without delaying for routine comfort measures.

3. Correct: A - Tell the nurse about the resident's request for an explanation before the change

Residents should be included in decisions and receive understandable information about changes affecting care. The aide relays the request without making promises or withholding information.

4. Correct: D - Do not use the damaged equipment and notify the nurse promptly

A cracked CPAP connector may prevent the equipment from functioning as intended. The aide should not repair or modify prescribed respiratory equipment independently.

5. Correct: A - Maintain attentive eye contact and allow the resident time to finish

Patient listening respects the resident's voice and reduces pressure that may make communication harder. Finishing words or rushing can increase frustration and distort the message.

6. Correct: D - Use an available approved hand-hygiene method and report the empty dispenser for replacement

Hand hygiene cannot be skipped because one dispenser is empty. The aide should use an approved alternative and help restore access for the care area.

7. Correct: B - Avoid contact with it and report it for safe replacement according to policy

A body-fluid-soiled curtain can spread contamination. Turning or continuing to use it does not remove the hazard.

8. Correct: A - Keep both cushions out of use and ask the nurse or therapy team to verify each assignment

Custom equipment must be matched to the intended resident before use. The aide prevents a mix-up and involves the team members who can verify the assignment.

9. Correct: D - Use the emergency communication system, reassure the resident, and wait for trained help

Forcing doors or attempting an unplanned exit can cause serious injury. Calling trained help while remaining calm protects both resident and aide.

10. Correct: B - Move the resident to a warm area, provide dry covering, and report the change promptly

Persistent shivering and inability to get warm after cold exposure require prompt warming and reporting. Extreme heat or forced exercise can cause harm.

11. Correct: C - Show the word to the resident and ask for clarification

Verification lets the resident correct a technology error and preserves control of the message. Guessing may create a false understanding.

12. Correct: A - Relay the request and help the resident obtain the policy through the facility process

The resident should be able to receive written information about bed-hold arrangements before a hospital transfer. The aide helps obtain accurate policy information instead of guessing.

13. Correct: B - Notify the nurse and coordinate a safe plan before ambulation

Required footwear is part of the resident's safe walking plan. The team must resolve the missing shoes before the aide proceeds with ambulation.

14. Correct: D - Provide privacy, fasten the button as requested, and check that the collar is comfortable

The resident's modesty and clothing preference should guide safe dressing care. Checking comfort prevents the collar from becoming restrictive.

15. Correct: C - Place the adapted toothbrush within reach and allow time for the resident to use it

Proper setup enables the resident to perform a learned self-care skill. Unnecessary takeover reduces independence.

16. Correct: B - Avoid the unsafe steps and contact the supervisor according to agency procedure

The aide should not risk a fall when access is unsafe. Agency guidance can arrange a safe response without asking the client to enter the hazard.

17. Correct: B - Provide the clean washcloth as requested

A clean washcloth is a safe bathing choice and supports the resident's preference. The original setup does not require the resident to use the bath mitt.

18. Correct: D - Say the resident's name and identify self before speaking

Identifying the speaker gives a resident with low vision the context that sighted participants receive visually. Speaking without identification can make the discussion hard to follow.

19. Correct: B - Stay with the resident and summon the nurse or emergency help immediately

Clear ear drainage after a head injury is an urgent change requiring immediate professional evaluation. The aide should not pack, rinse, or move the resident unnecessarily.

20. Correct: D - Offer a mirror and clean washcloth, assisting only as much as requested

A mirror and clean cloth support independent grooming and dignity. Shaving or taking over without permission disregards the resident's preference.

21. Correct: A - Help the resident rest safely and report the objective change to the nurse

Unusual fatigue during a familiar activity is a change the nurse should receive promptly. Objective team communication supports assessment without the aide diagnosing.

22. Correct: B - Place the sock aid within reach and allow the resident to use the trained method

Providing the learned device preserves the resident's dressing ability. Doing the task for speed removes useful practice.

23. Correct: B - Report the problem and follow facility procedure to obtain working emergency equipment

Emergency equipment must be ready before an emergency occurs. Corroded nonworking equipment should be replaced through the approved process.

24. Correct: C - Use the approved lens-cleaning method and a clean soft cloth

Proper lens care restores clear vision without scratching the surface or damaging the frame. Rough or extreme methods can harm the resident's property.

25. Correct: D - Decline to participate and report the solicitation according to facility policy

Staff should not use their position to seek money from residents for personal causes. Reporting protects residents from pressure or exploitation.

26. Correct: C - Do not serve the tray and obtain a safe replacement according to policy

A soiled-linen hamper is a contaminated surface. The covered tray still requires safe replacement rather than cosmetic wiping.

27. Correct: D - Unfasten the top and assist with dressing according to the resident's abilities

Opening the garment allows comfortable dressing without force or damage. Assistance should match the resident's abilities and chosen clothing.

28. Correct: B - Acknowledge the disappointment and offer a choice of safe temporary seating

Validation recognizes the resident's attachment to a familiar item. Offering choices restores some control without making an uncertain repair promise.

29. Correct: A - Provide the permitted beverage without ice as requested

When fluids are permitted, the resident may choose a reasonable serving preference. Adding unwanted ice or enforcing uniform service disregards the resident's choice.

30. Correct: B - Secure the pin correctly or replace the chair before the transfer

A partly engaged adjustment pin can allow the chair to collapse or tilt. The chair must be stable before the resident uses it.

31. Correct: A - Read the message back and confirm that it was understood correctly

Confirmation prevents loss of an important message before the board is cleared. The resident, not a visitor or the aide, determines the intended meaning.

32. Correct: B - Support and reposition the arm according to the care plan and report any new change

An unsupported weak arm can be injured by gravity or the moving wheel. Planned support protects the limb while reporting addresses any new loss of control.

33. Correct: A - Respect the choice and help with the selected blouse

A capable resident chooses personal clothing and undergarments. The aide supports the safe choice without pressure or transferring the decision to a visitor.

34. Correct: C - Keep the clock within reach and allow the resident to operate it

Accessible placement supports the resident's learned way to obtain information independently. Staff or roommate takeover is unnecessary.

35. Correct: B - Respond to the resident's comforting emotion and allow the safe behavior

The harmless activity is calming, so confrontation is not needed. Responding to emotion preserves dignity and reduces avoidable distress.

36. Correct: A - Help apply the suspenders as the resident prefers and check comfort

Safe clothing preferences are part of resident-directed daily care. Checking fit supports both choice and comfort.

37. Correct: C - Acknowledge the feeling and offer a different voluntary activity

Residents may decline an activity that causes emotional discomfort. Validation and a voluntary alternative provide support without forced exposure.

38. Correct: A - Check the towel temperature and apply it only if it is comfortable

Checking warmth with the resident prevents burns while honoring a comfort request. Unapproved heating methods can create hot spots.

39. Correct: B - Gently blot and pat the hair with a clean towel

Gentle blotting dries hair while reducing pulling and scalp discomfort. Vigorous rubbing can increase pain and tangling.

40. Correct: D - Remove it from the clean area and have it reprocessed according to facility procedure

Used elimination equipment can contaminate clean supplies. It must be separated and properly reprocessed before reuse.

41. Correct: C - Discard or replace them according to policy and obtain effective approved disinfectant

Dried wipes may not deliver the required disinfectant amount or contact time. Adding water does not restore the product as directed.

42. Correct: C - Keep the attachment in place and allow the resident to operate it

The lever removes a physical barrier and supports independent hand hygiene. Operating the faucet for the resident when not needed reduces self-care.

43. Correct: A - Relay the request and help them access the facility's review process

The spouses' request deserves respectful review through the proper process. The aide supports access without promising or independently making a room assignment.

44. Correct: C - Prepare the sandwich in the directed bite-size pieces before serving

The care-plan instruction must be followed even when the food seems soft. The aide should prepare the food as directed rather than ask the resident to compensate.

45. Correct: B - Acknowledge the feeling and offer simple name cues if the resident wants them

Respectful optional cues can reduce embarrassment and support participation. Public quizzing or dismissal can increase shame.

46. Correct: C - To reduce pressure and friction against the skin

Wrinkles create uneven pressure and rubbing beneath a resident who cannot reposition. A smooth dry surface supports skin protection.

47. Correct: C - Keep the board out of use and have it cleaned and disinfected according to policy

Sticky residue means the board is not ready for safe resident contact despite its label. Covering or scraping during use does not provide approved reprocessing.

48. Correct: B - Listen to the concern, explain only known continuity measures, and report persistent anxiety

Listening and accurate information address the underlying fear without false promises. Reporting persistent anxiety helps the team provide consistent support.

49. Correct: D - Use short sentences, pause as requested, and check understanding

Following the documented communication preference gives the resident time to process each idea. Rushing can reduce comprehension and participation.

50. Correct: B - Keep the cart out of use and report the brake problem

A rolling cart with hot liquids can cause collision or burn injuries. Makeshift wheel blocks do not replace functioning brakes.

51. Correct: B - Place the bonnet as requested and check that it is secure without being tight

The clean bonnet supports the resident's grooming preference. A comfort check prevents excessive pressure or restrictive tying.

52. Correct: D - Position the loop within reach and allow the resident to use it

The dressing loop is an adaptation that enables the resident's own effort. Proper setup preserves independence.

53. Correct: A - Protect the original information and report the alteration through the proper channel

A resident's complaint must not be changed by staff. Preserving and reporting the original protects honesty and the resident's grievance rights.

54. Correct: C - Pause the transfer and have the dog safely secured before continuing

An animal moving through the transfer area creates a trip and balance hazard. The environment must be safe before standing or walking resumes.

55. Correct: C - Do not transport it as usual; contain the area and notify the nurse according to exposure procedure

A leaking specimen bag can expose people and contaminate surfaces. The aide follows exposure procedure rather than handling or transferring the specimen casually.

56. Correct: A - Follow the label and facility laundry process to protect the resident's property

Following garment instructions helps prevent damage to a resident's clothing. Personal property should receive careful, accountable handling.

57. Correct: C - Report the privacy breach immediately according to facility policy

Prompt reporting allows the facility to begin required privacy-response steps. Concealing the error can increase harm and violates ethical accountability.

58. Correct: D - Address the resident directly and relay the request to include the elder with the resident's consent

The resident remains the central decision-maker while a culturally important support person may be included with consent. The aide should not assume the elder replaces the resident's voice.

59. Correct: A - Keep the resident safe and report the symptoms and pulse to the nurse immediately

Dizziness with an unusually slow pulse is a significant change requiring prompt nursing attention. The aide reports the measured value and symptom without exercising the resident or delaying.

60. Correct: C - Turn off and unplug the trimmer, then clean the detachable guard as directed

Disconnecting electrical power before cleaning reduces shock and injury risk. Only the removable part should be cleaned by the approved method.

61. Correct: D - The resident needed three verbal cues to begin each observed grooming step

The team needs objective firsthand data about the requested behavior. Labels, diagnoses, and predictions exceed the observation and can mislead care planning.

62. Correct: B - Keep residents away, close or restrict the area, and report the hazard immediately

Sewage is a contamination and slip hazard. Restricting access and reporting protects residents while trained personnel manage cleanup.

63. Correct: C - To reduce scratching and the collection of microorganisms

Short smooth nails reduce the chance of injuring fragile skin and make thorough hand hygiene easier. Nail care does not replace hand hygiene.

64. Correct: A - Respect the refusal and report that the resident does not wish to perform the task

A resident cannot be forced to perform facility work. The aide respects the choice and communicates it without punishment.

65. Correct: A - Stop using the dryer and report the fire hazard for safe correction

Heavy lint near heat can ignite and must be corrected before further use. Covering or heating it increases risk.

66. Correct: A - Notify the nurse and transport team so an approved accessible plan can be arranged

Coordinating early allows the team to protect access and appointment continuity. The aide should not attempt an unsafe stair carry or cancel independently.

67. Correct: C - Support the resident's choice and address the disrespectful comment calmly

The chosen activity is meaningful and age does not make it inappropriate. Calmly protecting dignity supports self-esteem without escalating the interaction.

68. Correct: D - It may create pressure and interfere with circulation

Prolonged firm pressure behind the knees can compress tissue and blood vessels. Positioning supports should follow the care plan and avoid harmful pressure points.

69. Correct: D - Notify the nurse and support the resident in obtaining timely information about the transfer process

The resident should receive information and participate in plans affecting living arrangements. The aide relays the request instead of packing or inventing details.

70. Correct: A - Help the resident locate the posted or otherwise available results according to facility procedure

Residents should be able to access official facility survey information. The aide helps with the established access process rather than withholding or fabricating content.
